About Us

Our Vision

• Project Appleseed is a nonprofit resource, advocate, and voice for the 65 million public school parents in America.

Our Mission

• Project Appleseed provides resources for parents who want to be engaged in their children's schools and for schools who seek their involvement.
For over 20 years, Project Appleseed has been an effective advocacy organization that engages public schools and families by mobilizing millions of volunteers, building responsibility and promoting accountability — both at school and at home. With a focus on low-income and under-served families and schools, Project Appleseed works to improve schools, build public awareness, enable public engagement, advance policy positions and advise elected officials and other decision-makers on best practices for creating optimal educational environments. The effect of our efforts are clear: academic achievement rises in tandem with parental involvement.
Our web-based tools utilize the Six Types of Parental Involvement from Dr. Joyce Epstein’s research to engage with families, schools, and communities for student success and achievement in K-12 education. It has many useful resources for both educators and parents including tips, the Parental Involvement Toolbox, and handouts.

Project Appleseed's Parental Involvement Pledge is a learning compact, providing an opportunity for parents to formalize their commitment to working with their child’s school through a written agreement, which they can complete and take to their parent leader, school secretary, teacher, or principal.

Our Story

Project Appleseed

1993
Outstanding Schools Act
In Missouri, Project Appleseed proposed and passed landmark school “report card” legislation that chronicle the state of each public school district and its schools to help parents & the public evaluate how the district performed.

1994
Title I Elementary and Secondary Education Act
Project Appleseed worked with the White House to pass groundbreaking legislation mandating parent involvement affecting half of America’s schools.
Our Story

Project Appleseed

1994 - 1997
Signature Annual Family Events

Project Appleseed established National Parental Involvement Day in 1994 and Public School Volunteer Week in 1997. Ten million family members participate each year.

1999 - 2001
Top Ten In America

Our founder was named one of the Top Ten People In American Education by Teacher magazine in 1999. He was the recipient of Parenting magazine’s Parenting Leader Award in 2001.
Our Story

Project Appleseed

2009
Race To The Top

Democrat & GOP Tennessee Governors implement Project Appleseed's program model as part of winning a $500 million U.S. Department of Education, Race to the Top grant.

2011
10 Unsung Nonprofits That Should Be Household Words

Project Appleseed was named by EcoSalon as one of "10 Remarkable Nonprofits You've Never Heard Of". Called the "little engine that could make a significant dent in aiding women, children and the planet at large."
Project Appleseed is the #1 search result in two million, for “parental involvement in public schools” in all leading search engines, Google, Bing & Yahoo!

Each week our website is visited by the 100 largest school districts in the United States! Schools worldwide account for 30% of our visitors!
The most recent research on effective parental involvement shows that numerous barriers to involvement exist for both schools and families. Some barriers are created by limited resources, while others originate from the beliefs, perceptions and attitudes of families and school staff.
Barriers include:

• Lack of teacher time.

• Educator’s misperceptions of parents’ abilities.

• Lack of understanding of parents' communication styles.

• Family mobility, limited family resources, such as transportation and child care.

• Parents' lack of comfort and vested interest in the school along with tension in relationships between parents and teachers.

• Difficulties of involvement in the upper grades.
• School staff had not been trained to work with families.
• Administrators and teachers worried that increased family involvement would add to their already busy schedules.
• Educators were concerned that closer relationships with families would mean giving up power and decision-making.
• Families were not sure how far they could go in making suggestions or asking questions; they worried that children would be punished for their parents' actions by a teacher or principal who was annoyed or threatened by the parent.

Reflecting a systemic approach to education from birth to young adulthood, this definition consists of the following principles:

Parent and Family Engagement

Definition

- First, family engagement is a shared responsibility in which schools and other community agencies and organizations are committed to reaching out to engage families in meaningful ways and in which families are committed to actively supporting their children’s learning and development.

- Second, family engagement is continuous across a child’s life and entails enduring commitment but changing parent roles as children mature into young adulthood.

- Third, effective family engagement cuts across and reinforces learning in the multiple settings where children learn— at home, in prekindergarten programs, in school, in after school programs, in faith-based institutions, and in the community.
Who do we engage?

- National, state and local partners
  - Governor
  - State legislature
  - State board of education
  - Districts
  - Teachers
  - Principals
  - Other school leaders
  - Charter school leaders
  - Specialized instructional support personnel
  - Paraprofessionals
  - Administrators,
  - Other staff
  - Parents, grandparents and caring adults

Help Seekers
- Parents Who Are Concerned About Their Own Children’s Learning and Need Help.

School Helpers
- Parents Who Want to Help Out More in Traditional Ways at Their Children’s Schools

Potential Transformers
- Parents Who Would Like More Say in their Children’s Schools and Are Poised to Take Action

Public Agenda research demonstrates that public school parents fall into three categories. The Parental Involvement Toolbox is designed to engage each group with evidence based strategies.
School Districts: The district Title I parent and family engagement policy must describe how the district will:

- Involve parents in the joint development of the district plan;
- Provide the support necessary to assist schools in implementing effective family engagement activities;
- Conduct an annual evaluation of the effectiveness of the policy in improving the academic quality of Title I schools and use the findings to design strategies to support successful school and family interactions and revise engagement policies; and
- Involve families in schools activities, which may include establishing an advisory board to develop, revise and review the engagement policy.
Every Student Succeeds Act
Title I Engagement

Schools: The school parents and family engagement policy must describe how the school will:

- Convene an annual meeting, at a convenient time to which all parents of low-income students are invited and encouraged to attend, to inform parents that their school receives Title I funds, that these funds come with requirements, and that parents have a right to be involved;
- Offer a flexible number of engagement meetings at convenient times for families (for which the school may provide transportation, child care, or home visits using Title I funds);
- Provide parents and families with:
  - Information about Title I-funded programs;
  - An explanation of the curriculum and achievement levels the school uses; and
- If requested, opportunities for regular meetings to participate in decisions relating to the education of their student.
Every Student Succeeds Act

Title I Engagement

The Same:

Title I schools must develop:

- FE Policy – meetings, program review, info on curriculum and testing, parent comments.
- School-Parent Compact: Shared responsibility for student learning, dual capacity for involvement;

New:

- Ensure regular two-way, meaningful communication between family members and school staff.
- 90% of Title I family engagement funds go directly to the school

Source: National Association for Family School Engagement
Core Principles:

- Family engagement is an essential strategy to improve student learning.
- Parents and families are not “the problem” but essential partners
- Both educators and families need support to collaborate
- Close parent-teacher communication and collaboration is what improves student learning

As a reform strategy, family engagement should be systemic, integrated, and sustained.

- Systemic family engagement is purposefully designed as a core component of educational goals such as school readiness, student achievement, and school turnaround.

- Integrated family engagement is embedded into structures and processes designed to meet these goals, including training and professional development, teaching and learning, community collaboration, and the use of data for continuous improvement and accountability.

- Sustainable family engagement operates with adequate resources, including public–private partnerships, to ensure meaningful and effective strategies that have the power to impact student learning and achievement.

Beliefs & Assumptions
Parents are their child’s first and most important teachers. (Megan Northrup 1990)
When parents are involved in children’s education, children are more successful in school. (Henderson & Mapp 2002)
When parents are involved in school planning and review, through active participation schools are more effective.

Areas of Focus and Priorities
Navigating the School as a System
Leadership and Advocacy
Targeted Academic Development
Communication Between the Home and the School

Six Slices of Family Involvement
GOAL: Recruit and organize parent help

Sample best practices:

- Distribute Project Appleseed's learning compact known as the Parental Involvement Pledge to recruit and organize parent volunteers.

- Distribute Project Appleseed's Parental Involvement Report Card. The Report Card is intended to help parents evaluate their contributions to their child's success at school.

- Use the Pledge to identify all available talents, times, and locations of volunteers.

- Establish a parent room or center for volunteer work, meetings, and resources for families.
GOAL: Help all families establish home environments to support children as students.

Sample best practices:

- Home visits at transition points to preschool, elementary, middle and high school; and neighborhood meetings to help families understand schools and to help schools understand families.

- School provides suggestions for home conditions that support learning at each grade level, provides workshops, videotapes, and/or computerized phone messages on parenting and child-rearing.

- Parent education and other courses or training for parents (e.g., GED, college credit; family literacy), and family support programs to assist families with health nutrition, and other services.
GOAL: Design more effective forms of school-to-home and home-to-school communications with all families each year about school programs and their children's progress.

Sample best practices
- Parent and student pick-up of report card, with conferences with every parent at least twice a year, with follow-ups as needed.
- Weekly or monthly folders of student work are sent home and reviewed, parental comments returned to teacher. Regular schedule of useful notices, memos, phone calls, newsletters, and other communications.
- Clear information on all school policies, programs reforms, and transitions. Clear information on choosing schools, or courses, programs, and activities within schools.
GOAL: Provide information and ideas to families about how to help students at home with homework and other curricular-related activities, decisions, and planning.

Sample best practices:

- Information on homework policies and how to monitor, and discuss schoolwork at home, and skills required for students in all subjects at each grade.

- Information on how to assist students to improve skills on various class and school assignments.

- Regular schedule of homework that requires students to discuss and interact with families on what they are learning in class (e.g., TIPS).

- Goal setting for students with families each year, and for future plans for college or work.
GOAL: Include parents in school decisions, developing parent leaders and representatives.

Sample best practices:

- Active PTA/PTO or other parent organizations, school advisory councils for parent leadership and participation.

- District level councils and committees for family and community involvement.

- Independent advocacy groups to work for school improvements and to provide networks to link all families with parent representatives.

- Information on school or local elections for school representatives.
GOAL: Identify and integrate resources and services from the community to strengthen school programs, family practices, and student learning.

Sample best practices:

- Information for students and families on community health, cultural, recreational, social support, and other programs or services.
- Information on community activities that link to learning skills and talents, including summer programs for students.
- Service to the community by students, families, and schools (e.g., recycling, art, music, drama, and other activities for seniors or others, etc.)
- Alumni to link to school programs for students.
